

About the Autistic Mama

Kaylene is an autistic, homeschooling mom of five little ones aged seven and under. Her five children are all over the neurodiversity spectrum with autism, giftedness, dyspraxia, sensory processing disorder, and a global developmental delay. She writes regularly on the blog Autistic Mama about parenting and homeschooling autistic kids, life as an autistic adult, and autism advocacy. Autistic Mama is a safe-haven for self-advocates and parents who are learning to understand, accept, and embrace autism.

The Audience

Autistic Mama's audience is made up primarily of moms aged 24-45 with autistic children ranging from 2 years old to teenagers. Many of the moms are homeschooling, and have multiple children. The audience loves helpful and practical tips for busy moms, and they're open to products that make their lives and their autistic children's lives better!
